

Washington Society for the History of Medicine

History of Medicine Division
National Library of Medicine

Office of NIH History
National Institutes of Health

Graduate Student Symposium

Plenary speaker

Angela N.H. Creager

Department of History
Program in the History of Science
Princeton University

2 May 2008

8:30 am - 5:00 pm

FREE to REGISTRANTS

Lister Hill Visitors Center
National Library of Medicine
8600 Rockville Pike, Bldg. 38A

Lunch, refreshments, snacks provided.

Registration: email Judy Chelnick chelnickj@si.edu

NIH directions, access: www.nlm.nih.gov/about/visitor.html

PROGRAM

8.30-9.00 Coffee

9.00 -9.15 Introductions

David Cantor, President, Washington Society for the History of Medicine.

Elizabeth Fee, Chief, History of Medicine Division, National Library of Medicine.

Robert Martensen, Chief, Office of NIH History, National Institutes of Health.

9.15-10.15 Plenary

Angela N.H. Creager, Dept of History & Program in the History of Science, Princeton University.

Artificial Radioisotopes in Biomedicine, 1935-1955: From Gift Exchange to Commodification in the Atomic Age.

10.15–10.30 Coffee

10.30-12.15 What we're working on. Why we're interested. How things have changed since the last Graduate Student Symposium

A chance for all of us, graduate students and historians working in the field, to talk informally about our research projects, interests, theoretical frames, methods, etc.

Format: 5-10 minutes per participant (including discussion).

Up to 3 slides on memory stick allowed.

12.15-1.15 Lunch

1.15-2.45 Publishing Your Research

What do publishers/journals want? What not to do. How to write a good book proposal.

Mary E. Fissell, Editor, Bulletin of the History of Medicine.

Randall M. Packard, Editor, Bulletin of the History of Medicine.

Jacqueline Wehmüller, Executive Editor, the Johns Hopkins University Press.

Robert Martensen, Chief, Office of NIH History, National Institutes of Health.

2.45-3.15 Coffee

3.15-5.00 Archival Research

A discussion about the problems of archival research from the points of view of archivists, curators, and historians.

Paul Theerman, Head, Images and Archives, History of Medicine Division, National Library of Medicine.

Michael Rhode, Chief Archivist, National Museum of Health and Medicine, Washington, DC.

John Swann, Historian, FDA History Office, Rockville, Maryland.

5.00 Retire to the Rock-Bottom Brewery, Bethesda.